HOW IS YOUR SCHOOL DISTRICT ADAPTING TO NEW ACCOUNTABILITY MANDATES AND REQUIREMENTS?

Accountability for schools and districts across the nation is changing. This requires educators to adapt to these to new requirements in teaching and learning.

Chalkable Achievement Services instructional coaches deliver unique embedded professional development that incorporates these new accountability mandates. By executing instructional changes to meet these new mandates, educators are are armed with new instructional practices - thus increasing student achievement.

In too many schools, teacher professional development still consists of one-day workshops without much follow-through or support—which leads to very little change in instructional practices.

Chalkable on-site, on-going, research-based professional development provides teachers and administrators with the tools to transition to the new accountability mandates while building capacity and increasing student achievement at the same time.
